And They Ask: "If Sheldon Couldn't Be Nominated for Lieutenant-Governor by the Republicans, How Can Coler Be Nominated for Governor by Democrats?"-The Tammany Delegates.

SARATOGA, Sept. 26.-In the estimation of Democrats who are a little ahead of time n getting here for the Democratic State Convention next Tuesday, something is in e wind. John F. Carroll arrived to-night and he was shortly joined by James Shevlin, of the keen spokesmen for Hugh McLaughlin, for forty years the Demooratic leader of Kings county. Mr. Shevlin nd Mr. Carroll were as usual reticent and swardly indifferent. Yet they had not een in this beautiful village thirty-seven ninutes by the clock before it was made known that Bird S. Coler of Kings is president of the Guardian Trust Company of New York city, with a capital of $2,000,000. He is also president of the Medina Sandstone Trust, with a capital of $2,000,000. The Sandstone Trust is located in Orleans county, and the employees of this trust tere the first to get out Coler buttops. Right here it should be said that just before Mr. Color retired from his office as Comproller of New York city he said

"After I leave this office I am to return o Wall Street and to honest men." His experiences in politics, is was said. must have been dreadful.

Mr. Coler occupies to a certain extent the same position as George R. Sheldon, who withdrew as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Sheldon is a Wall Street banker So is Mr. Coler. Mr. Sheldon had interest which might have been injurious to the Republican cause. Mr. Coler is in the same boat. He has extensive financial interests in syndicates in Wall Street and in Western farm mortgages, and it was asked to-night: "Don't you suppose your Uncle Davy Hil knows all about him?" and the answer came back, "I guess yes." The logic of the Democratic situation is: If Sheldon couldn't be nominated for Lieutenant-Governor by the Republicans, how can Coler (in the same financial skiff as Sheldon) be nominated by the Democrats for Governor And so the argument went on to the effect that it is all off with Coler as a possible Democratic candidate for Governor.

The Democratic State ticket mostly discussed here to-night is Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of Kingston for Governor and Randolph Guggenheimer of New York for Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Hill has had a talk with Judge Parker recently, and to-day in New York city he had a fine talk with Mr. Guggenheimer. Mr Hill and Leader Murphy of Tammany Hall and their friends are working day and night to breathe the breath of life into the Democratic organization of the State. Take a glance at the delegates elected by Tammany to the Democratic State Convention.

In the Sixth Tammany district appears the name of August Belmont, the banker and friend of John B. McDonald, the contractor Mr. Belmont is the son of August Belmont, who was chairman of the Democratic National Committee in 1876, the year when Samuel J. Tilden was the candidate of the Democratic party for ident. Young August Belmont ha never before taken an interest in the party which his father loved so well, and for which his father so valiantly fought in thos strenuous days of 1876.

A strikingly interesting delegate elected from the Seventh district of Tammany is John A McCall, president of the New York Life Insurance Company Mr. McCall has not attended a Democratic State Convention since 1891, when Flower was nominated for Governor. In 1896 Mr McCall came out strong for McKinley, and e pursued a similar course in 1900. 1888, when Cleveland was Governor, Mr McCall was elected by the State Senate to be State Superintendent of Insurance No Democrat in the country has enjoyed such confidential relations with Mr. such confidential relations with Mr. McKinley and Senator Hanna as Mr. McCall. He has been the guest of Mr. McKinley on a hundred occasions since 1896. Senator on a hundred occasions since 1896. Senator Hanna on his visits to New York city invariably calls on Mr. McCall.

James T. Woodward, president of the Hanover Bank, is to be a delegate from the Eighth Tammany district. Mr. Woodward was treasurer of the Democratic State Committee in 1894, when Mr. Hill was the "stampeded" candidate for Governor, Mr. Woodward has taken no active part in Democratic State politics since part in Democratic State politics since that eventful year.

Then there is Franklin Bartlett, elected a delegate for the Thirteenth Tammany district. Col. Bartlett has been very busy these few years back and now decides to reenter the political arena.

Another Tammany delegate to the Demo Another Lammany delegate to the Demo-cratic State Convention is President J. Edward Simmons of the Fourth National Bank of New York city. Mr. Simmons has not attended a Democratic State Con-vention since 1891, when he was a delegate to the convention held here which nominated Roswell P. Flower for Governor.
Mr. Simmons was the personal friend of Mr. McKinley. Cornelius N. Bliss is one of the chief directors of the Fourth National Bank. It was Senator Hanna who wanted Bank. It was Senator Hanna who wanted Mr. Bliss nominated for Vice-President at Philadelphia in place of President Roosevelt in 1900. On March 5, 1897, President McKinley "drafted" Mr. Bliss to be his Secretary of the Interior. Mr. Bliss at that time was treasurer of the Republican National Committee, and when he retired from that place to become Secretary of the Interior Vice-President James G. Cannon of the Fourth National Rank succeeded Interior Vice-President James G. Cannon of the Fourth National Bank succeeded Mr. Bliss as treasurer of the Republican National Committee. All this time the funds of the Republican National Committee were on deposit in the Fourth National, Bank. Mr. Simmons for several years refused all requests of Mr. Croker to return to Tammany Hall.

to Tammany Hall.

Nathan Straus is one of the Tammany delegates from the Twenty-eighth district. Mr. Straus is the brother of Oscar Straus, Cleveland's Minister to Turkey.

One of the Tammany delegates for the Fifth district is John G. Carlisle, former Democratic Speaker of the House of Representatives! United States Senator from Kentucky and Cleveland's last Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Carlisle, like his old Republican adversary, Speaker Thomas B. Reed, has been a resident of New York city for several years.

Another interesting Tammany delegate s William B. Hornblower, from the Eighteenth district. Mr. Hill, when he was a United States Senator, defeated Mr. Hornplower's confirmation in the Senate as Cleve-and's nominee for the United States Supreme Court bench. From the Twenty-ninth Tammany dis-ict comes William McAdoo, Assistant ceretary of the Navy under William C. Whitney in President Cleveland's first term, and Thomas F. Gilroy, who has been on the Observation Car on Pennsylvania Special. The Pennsylvania Special is now equipped perfectly new, improved Pullman observe. Twenty hours New York to Chicago.—A shelf for several years, returns as a Tammany delegate for the Thirty-first district.

Amasa J. Parker of the Second district of Albany is to be a delegate, and Mr. Parker's connections are of the old Democratic line. His father was a Supreme Court Justice and one of the most notable lawyers of his time. From the Second district of Eric comes Herbert H. Bissell, brother of Wilson S. Bissell, one of Cleveland's Postmaster-Generals. Then there is Robert A. Maxwell of Batavia, "axeman" in the Post Office Department in Mr. Cleveland's second term. An innovation by Mr. Hill is the election of Democratic editors of newspapers to be of Democratic editors of newspapers to be delegates in the convention. Here are ome of the Democratic editors who are to some of the Democratic cultors who are to attend the convention as delegates; Joseph Pulitzer, Charles R. Miller and Arthur Brislane of New York, James W. Hinkley of Poughkeensie, Albert E. Hoyt of Albany, Edward McEncroe of Schenectady, J. Ed-Edward McEneros of Schenectady, J. Edward Young of Schoharie, Henry A. Reeves of Suffolk, Thomas E. Benedict, Cleveland's Public Printer, of Ulster: E. W. Horton of Livingston, W. A. Ensign of Sullivan, William Van Camp of Wayne, E. T. Williams of Niagara, Norman E. Mack and William J. Conners of Buffalo and Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn an of Auburn.

Although Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy nas won out in his great fight for supremacy in the Rensselaer district, it is not believed that Mr. Murphy will be well enough to that Mr. Mirphy will be well enough to the the convention. It was the opinion o-night that Devery will be seated, if he keeps quiet and behaves himself and has canker on his tongue." Devery has not engaged quarters for his men in Saraoga. The New York city delegates are o come here in forty-four cars. They will reach here on Monday. It was evident, in the opinion of Demo-erats who looked over this list of delegates Grats who tooked over his ist of delegates, that now that the financial policy of the Government has been established by legislation at Washington, the gold Democrats who forsook their party in 1896 and 1900 are returning to the Democratic fold.

A number of important friends of Mr. Ryvan are also among the delegates, but Bryan are also among the delegates, but the Kansas City financial plank is not to b rats. This convention is to follow the lead of Indiana and Connecticut and other "de-Herman Ridder, who had a long talk with Mr. Hill in Albany the other day, arrived here to-night. He had talks with Mr. Shevlin and Mr. Carroll, and later on he

TOBACCO WAR ABROAD ENDS? Report That American Trust Retires From English Field.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, Sept. 27.-A New York despatch o the Daily Mail says that after secret negotiations in London the British and American tobacco trusts have come to an agreement. The Imperial Tobacco Company, which is the British trust, will buy the Ogden Company and other American interests in England at a price which to some extent will recoup the American company for the money it sunk in its campaign to secure control of the British trade, in respect of which the British company will also make concessions to the American company in other territories outside the United Kingdom. The despatch adds that the documents are perhaps, not signed and sealed yet, but cable despatches indicate that nothing remains to be done, and stock of the British company is being sought in America.

The arrangement will end the rate cutting by which the dealers, rather than the public, have been the chief gainers. Messrs. Duke and Rvan and Attorney Fuller represented the American company in the negotiations. The Imperial company was represented by the heads of the firms of Wills & Co., Lambert & Bunders, LONDON FIRE CHIEF TO RESIGN. Criticism of the Department Will Result in His Retirement.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, Sept. 27.-The criticisms on the inefficiency of the London Fire Brigade have resulted, according to the Daily Mail, in the decision on the part of Capt. Wells, chief officer of the brigade, to resign. After the resumption of the sittings of the London County Council Capt. Wells will ask permission to retire.

COMSTOCK, WITH A HATCHET. Breaks Up 22 Picture Machines in the Rear of the Oak Street Station.

Anthony Comstock paid a visit to the Oak street station at noon yesterday. Two weeks ago he and Capt. O'Reilly raided an amusement place on Park Row, near Ann street, and captured twenty-two pennyin-the-slot picture machines. The machines were taken to the Oak street station and were piled up in the back yard awaiting Mr. Comstock's disposal of them.

Mr. Comstock's purpose vesterday was to break them to pieces, but he didn't bring a hatchet with him. One was finally found in the station house collar, and he set to owork. Capt. O'Reilly looked on and com-mended any particularly well-aimed blow. When Comstock stopped for breath the cap-tain didn't volunteer to "spell" him, how-ever. The work was done in an hour. Then Comstock left the house, with the captain howing on the deepsten. bowing on the doorstep.

HORSE SAVED FROM THE RIVER. Hauled From the Water to a Barge and Finally Led Ashore.

A blind dray horse belonging to Joseph Hithman of 28 Rector street and ridden by a twelve-year-old stable boy, walked over the bulkhead between Piers 6 and 7, North River, last night. The rider saved himself by a hasty back somersault, but the horse went in with a splash and a neighing that brought out most of the neighborhood.

Jack Morrisey, a longshoreman, let himself down into the water and tied a brace of tow lines about the horse's body. Then fifty men and boys with a rush and a scramble dragged the beast up two feet in the air and over the side of a deep-laden coal large.

From the coal barge the horse was led to a steam lighter and from the lighter to Pier 6 across a gangplank. Save a few bruises it wasn't hurt by its plunge.

COP JAILED; CHARGE, BRIBERY

JEROME'S MEN, IN HIDING, SAW HIM TAKE A WOMAN'S $10.

She Lured Him Into the Trap and They Heard Him Promise to "Fix It" to Have Her Let Alone-Had Paid 820 Before That-He Is Haughey's Man Beadle.

David Beadle, a plain clothes man of Capt. Haughey's West Thirty-seventh street station, was arrested yesterday afternoon in the office of District Attorney Jerome and was held by Justice Mayer of Special Sessions on a charge of bribery. The complainant is Jessie Clark, who lives in a flat in West Thirty-seventh street, and who says he accepted $20 from her. Beadle's examination was set down for Monday and he was committed to the Tombs under $500 bail, which was furnished

Jessie Clark is pretty and comparatively young. She is acquainted with Detective Welsh of the District Attorney's office She went to Welsh early this week and told him that on Wednesday of last week Capt. Haughey's wardman, Rosenfeld, and another man called at her flat, accused her of a number of things and then told her she must go to the police station with them. She said that she would go if they had a warrant. They hadn't, so Rosenfeld, she said, sent the other man out for a policeman. He returned with Beadle. Then Rosenfeld and the other man went away, leaving Beadle with the woman. This conversation followed, according to the woman: Beadle-It's too had that you've got to be arrested. It'll cost you $25 at the least, besides all the trouble. Now you pretend that you're a friend of mine and I'll try to square this. All that Jew [meaning Rosenfeld) cares about is money. He'll want $100 to let up on you.

The woman-I haven't more than $20 in the place.

Beadle-I'll see if that will do; but I on't know. She said she paid him the $20 and that her cook, an elderly woman named Huguenin saw the transaction. Later Beadle said "You know what will happen to you if you squeal Remember the Hamilton

Jessie Clark said she did remember. The Hamilton woman made a similar charge against one of Capt. Donohue's wardmen a year ago when Donohue was in command of the West Forty-seventh street precinct. Her corroborating witness, a negro maid, didn't corroborate her when the trial came on and the case against the wardman was thrown out of court. Then the Hamilton woman was driven out of the precinct.

The Clark woman assured Detective Welsh that her servant would stand to Welsh that her servant would stand to her guns. Welsh then repeated her story to District Attorney Jerome. Mr. Jerome assigned the case to Assistant District Attorney Miner, who arranged with the woman that he and County Detectives Welsh and Maher should be concealed in her flat on Thursday night. Then Beadle was invited to call on her there. He went. According to Mr. Miner, Beadle at once entered into friendly relations with the woman and she talked to him from a point of vantage on his lap. What they said was something like this:

Jessie Clark—I don't want to be bothered by the police. Isn't there some way that I can be let alone?

Beadle-Well, I think that I could fix for you for $10 a week.

Jessie Clark-I gave you $20 last week; I an give you $10 right away; that'll make

She gave him a ten-dollar bill and in-vited him, while he held it, to go to another room in the flat. This was so that her cook might see him with it. He demurred to this, and after thinking a moment he handed back to her the $10.

"I'll just let you keep that until I've seen Rosenfeld," Beadle said, as Mr. Miner told it last night. He went away and did not return.

Messrs. Miner, Welsh and Maher reported to Mr. Jerome yesterday. They said that Beadle was doing some work for Dissipar Attentor Garvan in con-Assistant District Attorney Garvan in con-nection with the Fish case, and they sug-gested that a message be sent in Garvan's name for Beadle to report to the District Attorney's office. Mr. Jerome agreed. Then he had the Clark woman and her cook summoned to his office. They reached there about 3:30 o'clock, after Mr. Jerome

there about 3:30 o'clock, after Mr. Jerome had gone to Lakeville.

The two women were secreted in a back room of Mr. Jerome's suite and Beadle was summoned. He was taken into the adjoining office, where Assistant District Attorney Gans was in charge. With him were Assistant District Attorneys Rand, Miner and Sandford and Detectives Welsh and Maher. Stenographer Gould was also present to take notes.

"You were at the fig. of a women remed."

"You were at the flat of a woman named Clark last night, weren't you?" Mr. Gans asked Beadle.

"Yes, I called there," he replied. "I went in response to a letter she sent saying she wanted to see me. She told me that she didn't want to be molested and I told her that if she wasn't violating the law she would not be subject to arrest."

"We had a man in that flat at the time you were there," said Mr. Gans. "Don't you think you had better tell the truth?"

"I've told you the truth, "replied Beadle, "Very well, sir," replied Mr. Gans. "Officer Welsh, arrest this man."

Welsh did, although no warrant had then been issued. But while Beadle was kept in the District Attorney's office, the two women with Welsh and Maher went before Justice Mayer and swore to affidavits Yes, I called there," he replied. "I

"Frouble With the Count," Says Her Father. "Was He Stopped Work When He Married"-Liked (hampagne Dinners, Though-Result; A Dakota Divorce. The Countess von Roden Kohsel, who ob-ained an absolute divorce from the Count n Dakota last week and then married Oscar B. Stillman, a sugar broker of this city, arrived here yesterday and is staying at the Hotel Manhattan. This morning she and her latest husband-he is her third, although she is only 30 years old-will sail for Porto Rico, where S. illman owns extensive plantations, on a honeymoon trip. Mrs. Stillman was Bertha Moore, the only daughter of J. Owen Moore, a well-known owner of trotting horses. In 1895 she was married to John A. Goldsmith, the son of Alden Goldsmith, who bred the famous trotting horse, Goldsmith Maid. Five months after the wedding Mr. Goldsmith died, leaving his widow a considerable fortune, including Walnut Grove Farm, a handsome estate near Newburgh, N. Y., and two fine pieces of property in Mexico.

Mrs. Goldsmith and her parents lived in the summer at Walnut Grove farm and in the winter at the Hotel Empire in this city. During the winter of 1897, Mrs. Goldsmith met at the Hotel Empire the Count Conrad von Roden Kohsel, who had come here from Germany and was engaged with a firm that makes printing ink. The pair were married after a few week's acquaintance, and went to live at the Countess's farm.

Mr. Moore said yesterday that the only rouble with the Count was that as soon as he got married he gave up his job and refused to work.

"The Count couldn't see the use of a man with a rich wife doing anything for a living." said Mr. Moore yesterday. "He just laid down on us and loafed. For three years my daughter supported him, and all he did was to give champagne dinners to his friends with her money. Every winter we went to my daughter's place in the City of Mexico and he went with us. Finally last winter I kicked. The Count was spending all of my daughter's income and was figuring on biting into the principal. I talked it over with my daughter and with Mr. Stillman, who is a very old friend of ours, and Mr. Stillman said to me: 'See here, if Bertha will get a divorce from this fellow I'll marry her myself.'

"Well, Bertha was tired of her Count too, so while he was hanging around Mexico Bertha and I slipped away one day and came to New York. He couldn't come with us because he didn't have the car fare and I told my wife, who was left behind not to advance it to him under any cir

"Bertha went to Dakota and later on I went down and told the Count that she was getting a divorce from him. Say, that cuss tried to get even by not allowing me to sell my daughter's property in Mexico He took advantage of the law which doesn' allow a woman to sell anything she has without the consent of her husband. In order to sell one piece of property I had to divide what I got for it with him. He wanted to do the same thing on the sale of Bertha's big ranch, but I blocked him there leased it to a friend of mine that the divorce has been granted we will sell it without the Count having anything to say about it. "The Count is still down in Mexico. My wife died down there last winter. Bertha got her divorce from the Count last week and was immediately married to Mr. Stillman. They are very happy and on their return from Porto Rico will live at the Stratford, 1070 Madison avenue.

"Say! I guess the Count will have to go to work now," and Mr. Moore chuckled

WARRANT FOR LAURA BIGGAR

PRICE TWO CENTS.

GIGANTIC FRAUD TO GET BEN-NETT FORTUNE EXPOSED.

Testimony at Long Branch Yesterday Indicates There Was No Marriage and No Child-Miss Biggar's Lawyers Leave the Case-Two Arrests Made.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 26.-If Laura Biggar, the former actress, can be found tomorrow, she will be arrested, charged with a conspiracy to divert the estate of the late Henry M. Bennett to herself. A warrant for her arrest was issued this afternoon on the application of Peter J. McNulty, who was private secretary to the Pittsburg millionaire and is a beneficiary under the will. At the same time he swore out war-, rants for Dr. C. C. Hendrick of Bayonne, money to buy food for his mother and who has been both physician and lawyer for Miss Biggar, and for former Justice of of the Peace Samuel Stanton, who recently made oath that he married Mr. Bennett and Miss Biggar on Jan. 2, 1898.

These two, with Miss Biggar, are accused of entering into a plot about July 1, to secure to the latter the whole of Bennett's estate, by seeking to establish formal union between Bennett and Miss Biggar and the birth of a posthumous child, which, under the laws of the States where Bennett's property is, would invalidate the will, giving the whole fortune to the child and its mother, and by the death of the supposititious child, fifteen days after birth, convey the whole to Miss Biggar. The issue of the warrants, the arrest of two of the principals, and the testimony immediately produced to show a conspiracy were very theatrical incidents of a day in court. Neither side pretended to know to-day where Miss Biggar is. Her last place of residence was Dr. Hendrick's sanitarium at Bayonne, so the warrant was sent to Hudson county, where to-morrow t will be indorsed by a justice of the peace of Hudson county and turned over to the

These events followed the withdrawal by Miss Biggar of the action she had brought to set aside the probate of the Bennett will. As the matter stands to-night, Miss Biggar takes a sum estimated at $350,000 as her share of the estate. But the other heirs mean to fight her now and to contest the payment of a single penny to her.

There is a provision of Bennett's will that any person attempting to dispute the probate of the document should thereby ose any inheritance under the testament If this clause be not held to disinherit Miss Biggar, the lawyers will contest her claim in the ground that it is contrary to public policy that she should share in an estate which she, as they allege, conspired to gain by fraud.

There was shown in court to-day evidence of conspiracy sufficient in the opinion of the Judge to hold Hendrick and Stanton $5,000 bail each. The array of lawyers opposed to Miss Biggar's interests told the ourt that witnesses would be produced to show that Miss Biggar and Bennett never were married, that they were not in Ho-boken or near that city on the day on which he ceremony is alleged to have been per-Since receiving the fortune Vandegrift formed, that the Justice who swore he marhas been carrying large sums of money, ried them did not live then in the house where he said the ceremony took place, that the marriage certificate was a fraud, that an attempt to change the records of Hoboken had been made, that Miss Biggar never gave birth to a child, and that it was all a fraudulent plot to steal the entire heirs when, after the will had been admitted to probate, Miss Biggar moved to set it aside, and for the first time made the set it aside, and for the first time made the claim of a ceremonial marriage to Bennett, and set up the rights of an alleged child, born after his death.

If she could prove this, she had $2,000,000 to gain. It has been stated erroneously from time to time that Miss Biggar got 60 per cent. of Bennett's estate under the will. In fact her portion was about $350,000, from an estate of an estimated value of from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. She received from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. She received 60 per cent. of certain personal property, a house in New York, an annuity of $1.800 and $1.000 in cash. After some trouble in the courts the other heirs decided to let the will stand. Meanwhile Miss Biggar had gone to live at Dr. Hendrick's sanitarium at Bayonne. She was there when the claim of a marriage and a child was announced.

Evidence touching on the disclosures was given a week ago to-day at a hearing before Judge William A. Heisley on the motion to set aside the probate of the will. Miss Biggar's lawyers had the best of that hearing. The other side put in a busy week. It developed to-day that they had detectives in Dr. Hendrick's sanitarium as patients. It developed to that Standard to that Standard to the Standard to announced. as patients. It developed too, that Stanton, the former Justice of the Peace, had been trapped by Miss Biggar's opponents.
After Stanton's testimony was given last week he fell in with Alexander C. Young, a lawyer of Hoboken, who was not known to be associated with the counsel for the other side, but who really had received a retainer of $10,000, because it was believed he could produce the evidence of conspiracy. Young advised Stanton that to corrobo-rate his evidence as to the marriage of Bennett and Miss Biggar he ought to correct the records of the Bjard of Health in Ho-boken. Stantion made out a certificate of marriage, dated in January, 1893, and en-deavored to have the clerk of the Board of Health pur it in the records. He also tried to get him to swear that Anna Weber, a witness to the alleged marriage, was dead. It develops that there was no Anna Weber. There was an Elizabeth Weber, who died last Luce.

last June.
Young was a witness to the conversations with the clerk of the Board of Health, and brought Stanton to a meeting of the lawyers fighting Miss Biggar, where he made some dmissions.

It was stated by the counsel for the heirs. It was stated by the counsel for the heirs, that they will produce two Justices of the Peace, who were approached by persons who wanted them to testify to an alleged marriage between Bennett and Miss Biggar, and that $1.000 was offered for this service. They also promised a mass of evidence to show that Miss Biggar was not delivered of a child, and that the infant buried as Bennett's son was not his or Miss Biggar's offspring.

That Stanton had been trapped was known to Dr. Hendrick and his people early in the week. On Wednesday Miss Biggar wrote a letter to C. C. Black of Jersey City, who is a very respectable lawyer, engaged as counsel in this case, directing him to withdraw the motion directing him to withdraw the motion then pending before Judge Heisley. She gave no reason. Last night Mr. Black telephoned to the lawyers of the other side, telling them what he intended to do, so that they need not bring their witnesses to Long Branch.

to Long Branch.

Representatives of all the interests came here at 10 o'clock this morning. Miss Biggar's attorneys went at once to the court room, which is in the Red Men's lodge building. The others stopped in Judge Heisley's chambers, where they laid their plans before him. Mr. McNulty then made his affidavits and got Justice Henry Schoenlein to sign them. The
